A SHORT ACCOUNT¹

OF THE

MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

The Massachusetts Historical Society is the oldest historical society in the United States, and had its origin in the new life inspired by the adoption of the National Constitution. Its chief founder was the Rev. Jeremy Belknap, at that time minister of the religious society worshipping in the Federal Street meeting-house in Boston, and known as the author of a History of New Hampshire, which still holds a foremost place among State histories. With him were associated four other students of early American history, all of them under fifty years of age — the Rev. John Eliot, minister of the New North Church; the Rev. Peter Thacher, minister of the Brattle Street Church; William Tudor, a prominent lawyer in Boston; and James Winthrop, of Cambridge, at that time one of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas for Middlesex County. Having formed the general plan of the Society, these gentlemen invited the co-operation of five other historical scholars — the Rev. James Freeman, minister of King's Chapel; James Sullivan, afterward Governor of the State; Thomas Wallcut, a zealous antiquary; William Baylies, a well-known physician of Dighton, who had served in each Provincial Congress of Massachusetts; and George Richards Minot, author of a "Continuation of the ¹ At a regular meeting on January 9, 1908, Mr. Charles C. Smith said: "At the Annual Meeting of this Society in 1882 Mr. Winsor, at that time the Corresponding Secretary, offered a vote 'that the Treasurer [Mr. Smith] be requested to report to the Society, for printing in its Proceedings, a succinct historical sketch of the Society, which can also be annexed to the pamphlet containing the Act of Incorporation and By-Laws, — the same to be sent to new members on their election.' In compliance with this vote, which was referred to the Council with full power and by them adopted, I reported at the October meeting a 'Short Account,' afterward printed in a leaflet of three pages, and reprinted in December, 1893, in the same form. As there are but few copies remaining of this leaflet, and as the conditions have greatly changed since it was first written, it has seemed to me desirable to revise the account and bring it down to the present time. I now respectfully submit it in a new draft, with only the necessary changes from the original sketch." The present version is the former edition brought up to date, with a few necessary additions, by Mr. Edward Stanwood, the Recording Secretary of the Society.

History of the Province of Massachusetts Bay" and a "History of the Insurrections in Massachusetts," known as Shays' Rebellion. On the 24th of January, 1791, less than two years after the organization of a national government, eight of the little group met at the house of Mr. Tudor, which stood on Court Street, at the corner of what was then known as Prison Lane (1722), subsequently (1841) named Court Square. Those thus brought together adopted a constitution limiting the number of members to "thirty citizens of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts," and organized the Society. At the next meeting several of the members handed in lists of books and manuscripts which they were willing to give toward the formation of an historical library. These gifts form the nucleus of the priceless collections now owned by the Society. The collection of historical manuscripts is large and important, and is especially rich in New England material.

Three years after its first meeting, the Society was incorporated, in February, 1794, by an act of the Legislature, which restricted the number of members to sixty, exclusive of Honorary Members "residing without the limits of this Commonwealth"; but by an additional act passed in 1857 the Society was authorized to enlarge its list of Resident Members to one hundred. This continues to be the limit to the number of members residing within the State. There is no charter restriction on the number of Corresponding or Honorary Members who may be elected; but by an understanding in the nature of unwritten law, reached after careful deliberation at the February meeting of 1894, the number of Honorary Members is limited to ten, and the number of Corresponding Members to fifty. It is understood that the choice of Honorary Members should be further restricted, and looked upon as a recognition on the part of the Society of what is considered by it supreme accomplishment in the field of historical work.¹

From the first the objects of the Society have been the collection, preservation, and diffusion of the materials for American history; and so early as 1792 the first volume of Collections was printed. This volume has been twice reprinted, and up to the present time has been followed by seventy-three other volumes, comprising in part reprints of scarce publications relating to

American history, and in part original memoirs, and early letters and other documents which had never before been printed. Among the most important documents thus made accessible are Hubbard's History of New England and Bradford's History of Plymouth,¹ both of which were first printed by the Society, Governor Bradford's Letter-Book, the Body of Liberties, the correspondence with reference to the donations to the town of Boston after the passage of the Boston Port Bill, Judge Sewall's Diary and Letter-Books, and important collections of Winthrop, Mather, Belcher, Belknap, Pepperrell, Trumbull, Heath, Warren, Jefferson, Bowdoin and Temple Papers, diary of Cotton Mather, Papers on the Commerce of Rhode Island, Copley-Pelham Letters, Warren-Adams Letters, and Jasper Mauduit Papers, etc. Beside these volumes the Society has also printed fifty volumes of Proceedings, covering the record of all its meetings for one hundred and twenty-six years, and including numerous historical documents of permanent value, and discussions by the members on interesting or important historical questions. In the Collections or Proceedings are memoirs of nearly all the deceased members of the Society, including many of the most distinguished men of their time in Massachusetts. A gallery of historical portraits has been formed, and many interesting relics have been gathered and placed under the charge of the Cabinet-Keeper, besides which the Adams collection of coins and medals was given, and the Appleton collection was bequeathed to the Society, which is also the custodian of other similar treasures.

At three different periods courses of public lectures have been given under the auspices of the Society, for the promotion of the objects for which it was formed. Of these only one has been published — a course of twelve lectures on subjects relating to the early history of Massachusetts delivered before the Lowell Institute in the early part of 1869.

As the Society neared the end of its first hundred years of active work, it was evident that an enlargement of methods had become necessary in order to keep abreast of the demands of a new century; and in 1889 a salaried editor was appointed to take charge of the publication of the Collections and Proceedings — the work of the members having been wholly gratuitous down to that time. In 1907 a still greater change was made by abolishing the admission fee and the annual assessment on Resident Members, thus placing Resident Membership on the same footing as Honorary and Corresponding Membership, honoris causa, with only the implied obligation that each person, according to the measure of his ability and opportunity, shall endeavor to promote the objects for which the Society was founded.

In its earliest years the Society had no established place of meeting; but in 1794 it received from several gentlemen, not members, the gift of an upper room over the arch in the Tontine Crescent, on the southerly side of what is now known as Franklin Street, where it remained until its removal in 1833 to the newly erected building of the Provident Institution for Savings, on Tremont Street adjacent to the King's Chapel Burial-ground, of which it then became part owner and afterward sole owner. In 1899 it removed to the building which it now owns and occupies at the corner of Boylston Street and the Fenway, on land reclaimed from the tide long after the formation of the Society. This building has already become inadequate.

At the annual meeting in April, 1918, the Society held thirty permanent funds, of an aggregate amount of about $452,000, of which about one-seventh had come from persons who were not members of the Society or from their legal representatives. One of those benefactors, Thomas Dowse, also gave during his own life his large and valuable private library; and the cost of fitting up the room in which his books are kept and the Society holds its meetings was defrayed by the executors of his will. Rev. Robert C. Waterston, a member for nearly thirty-four years, gave the greater part of his library, and by his will left a sufficient sum for fitting up a room for its safe-keeping, which has been designated as the Waterston Room. The Ellis Hall commemorates the gift of the dwelling-house of the Rev. Dr. George E. Ellis, seventh President, which under the provisions of his will was sold, and the proceeds applied toward the erection of the building now occupied by the Society.

In August, 1910, a bindery was begun by the Society for better dealing with its manuscripts, and many collections were repaired, mounted, and bound before labor conditions made a suspension of the bindery expedient in 1917.

A photostat was installed on April 13, 1914, and has been actively in use since that time in the reproduction of historical material, printed and manuscript, which could not otherwise have been reproduced. With the aid of this instrument the Society has issued the Boston News-Letter, 1704-1732, a complete file of the Protestant Intelligence, 1679-1681, printed in London by Benjamin Harris, before his emigration to Boston, the Journal of the (Mass.) House of Representatives, 1776-1777, and more than 5,000 letters and broadsides. Assistance has been given to many private undertakings of the same description, the most notable of which is the series of vocabularies, etc., in the native languages of Mexico and Central America, issued under the direction of Mr. Charles P. Bowditch, of Boston.

The Society has been fortunate in having had only nine Presidents since its organization—James Sullivan, Christopher Gore, John Davis, Thomas L. Winthrop, James Savage, Robert C. Winthrop, George E. Ellis, Charles Francis Adams, and Henry Cabot Lodge. Mr. Savage and Mr. R. C. Winthrop together served for forty-four consecutive years (1841-1885), and Mr. Adams had nearly completed twenty years, at the time of his death in 1915.

BY-LAWS.¹

CHAPTER I.

OF MEMBERS.

ARTICLE 1. — Membership in the Society shall be of three classes: Resident, Corresponding, and Honorary.

Resident Members shall be elected from among citizens of Massachusetts who habitually reside some considerable part of each year within this Commonwealth, and they shall cease to be members if they remove from the State; provided, however, that temporary or official absence shall not operate as a forfeiture of membership. Resident Members alone are entitled to vote or to take part in the business of the Society.

Corresponding Members shall be elected from among residents in other States or countries, and their membership shall cease if they become permanent residents within this Commonwealth. The number of Corresponding Members shall never exceed fifty.

Honorary Members shall be elected from among residents in other States or countries, who, in the judgment of the Society, have conducted researches of exceptional importance in the field of history and have produced works of widely recognized excellence. The number of Honorary Members shall never exceed ten.

ART. 2. — A book shall be kept by the Recording Secretary, in which any Resident Member of the Society may enter the names of persons whom he may regard as suitable to be nominated as Resident, Corresponding, or Honorary Members. It is understood that each member is bound in honor not to make known outside of the Society the name of any person either proposed or nominated. No nomination of any member shall be made except by a report of the Council at a stated meeting of the Society, nor be acted upon at the same meeting to which it is reported; nor shall more than one nomination for membership, of the same class, be reported or acted upon at any one meeting.

ART. 3. — Before any nomination to membership is acted upon a brief statement shall be made as to the residence and qualifications of the person nominated.

ART. 4. — The name of a Corresponding Member may be transferred from the list of Corresponding Members to that of Honorary Members by unanimous vote at any meeting of the Society subsequent to that at which notice of such proposed change is given. In case objection is made, the election of such person as an Honorary Member shall be effected only in accordance with the provisions of Articles 2 and 5 of this Chapter.

ART. 5. — In the election of members, which shall be by secret vote, the law and custom of our forefathers shall be observed, by taking the question with Indian corn and beans; the corn expressing yeas, and the beans nays. But no election shall be valid unless at least twenty votes are cast, and three-fourths of them are in the affirmative. Unless the person elected, having been duly notified by the Corresponding Secretary in writing, shall signify his acceptance in writing within six months, his election shall be void.

ART. 6. — No entrance fee or annual payment shall be required of Corresponding or Honorary Members; nor of Resident Members unless by special vote of the Society.

ART. 7. — Each member shall be entitled to receive without charge a copy of all the regular publications of the Society, issued after his election.

ART. 8. — Diplomas signed by the President, and countersigned by the two Secretaries, shall be issued to all persons who shall become members of the Society.

CHAPTER II.

OF MEETINGS.

ART. 1. — The Annual Meeting of the Society shall be held on the second Thursday of April, and there shall be a regular meeting on the second Thursday of every month, except July, August, and September, at three o'clock in the afternoon, at its rooms in Boston. But the Council may, at their discretion, cause any regular meeting to be postponed or omitted, or to be held in some other place. Special meetings shall be called by the President, or, in case of his absence or inability, by one of the Vice-Presidents or by the Council.

ART. 2. — At regular meetings of the Society, the order of business shall be as follows:

1. Reading the record of the preceding meeting.
2. Report of the Librarian.
3. Report of the Cabinet-Keeper.
4. Communications received by the Corresponding Secretary.
5. Unfinished business, and business assigned at the last meeting.
6. Report of the Council.
7. Reports of committees.
8. Such matters of business as may be proposed by any member.

9. Communications by members of the Society on any subject having relation to the purposes of the Society. For the orderly accomplishment of this object, the Society shall be divided alphabetically into three sections, as nearly equal in numbers as may be, each of which in turn shall have precedence in making communications; and the Recording Secretary, in his notification of each regular meeting, shall state which section is entitled to such precedence.

ART. 3. — Fifteen members shall be a quorum for all purposes except for the election of members, and for alterations of these By-Laws.

ART. 4. — At the request of two members present, any subject proposed for discussion shall be at once deferred to a subsequent meeting.

ART. 5. — All committees shall be appointed by the President, unless otherwise ordered.

CHAPTER III.

OF OFFICERS.

The officers of the Society shall be a President, who shall be, ex officio, Chairman of the Council; two Vice-Presidents; a Recording Secretary, who shall also be, ex officio, Secretary of the Council; a Corresponding Secretary; a Treasurer; a Librarian; and a Cabinet-Keeper—all of whom shall be chosen by ballot at the Annual Meeting, and shall hold their respective offices for one year, or until others are duly chosen in their stead. At the same meeting five members shall be chosen who, with the before mentioned officers, shall constitute the Council of the Society.

Not more than two of the members of the Council chosen at large shall hold their places for more than two successive years.

Whenever from any cause the actual number of members of the Council shall fall below thirteen, the Society may at any meeting elect additional members to make the number thirteen; but the terms of members so elected shall expire at the Annual Meeting next ensuing.

At the monthly meeting in March, annually, a Nominating Committee, consisting of three persons, shall be appointed, who shall report to the Annual Meeting a list of officers for the ensuing year.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE PRESIDENT.

The President shall preside over all meetings of the Society when present, and, in his absence, one of the Vice-Presidents, in the order of their names. In the absence of all these officers, a President pro tempore shall be chosen.

CHAPTER V.

OF THE RECORDING SECRETARY.

ART. 1. — The Recording Secretary, or, in case of his death or absence, the Corresponding Secretary, shall cause a notice of each meeting, regular or special, to be sent, through the post-office, to all Resident Members, not less than three days in advance thereof. But in case of special meetings the interval may be shortened, if the Council so direct.

ART. 2. — He shall keep an exact record of all the meetings of the Society, with the names of the members present, and shall enter in full all reports of committees that may be accepted by the Society, unless otherwise specially directed, or unless the same are to be included in the printed Proceedings.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

ART. 1. — The Corresponding Secretary, or in case of his death or absence the Recording Secretary, shall inform all persons of their election as members of the Society, send to each a copy of the By-Laws, and, on the acceptance of their election, issue the proper diplomas.

ART. 2. — He shall conduct the correspondence of the Society not otherwise provided for; and deposit in the Library copies of letters sent and original letters received.

CHAPTER VII.

OF THE TREASURER.

ART. 1. — The Treasurer shall give bond to such amount as the Council shall from time to time prescribe for the proper performance of his duties, and to secure the Society from loss in connection with the same. The cost of such bonding shall be paid by the Society. The Council shall further make provision for payment of a book-keeper or accountant, to aid the Treasurer in the performance of his duties.

ART. 2. — He shall collect all moneys due to the Society, and shall keep regular and faithful accounts of all the moneys and funds of the Society that may come into his hands, and of all receipts and expenditures connected with the same — which accounts shall always be open to the inspection of the members; and, at the Annual Meeting, he shall make a written report of all his doings for the year preceding, and of the amount and condition of all the property of the Society intrusted to him.

ART. 3. — He shall pay no moneys, except on vote of the Society, or of the Council, or with the approval of an officer or committee of the Society or Council thereunto duly authorized.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE LIBRARIAN, AND OF THE LIBRARY.

ART. 1. — The Librarian shall have charge of all the books, tracts, maps, manuscripts, and other property of the Society appropriate to a library; shall cause catalogues of them to be made and kept, and shall do whatever may be in his power, at all times, to preserve and increase the collections under his care.

ART. 2. — He shall acknowledge the receipt of each gift made to the Library, by a certificate addressed to the giver.

ART. 3. — He shall, at every monthly meeting of the Society, report all gifts made to the Library since the last regular meeting, with the names of the givers; and, at the Annual Meeting, shall present a statement of the condition and wants of the Library, with a notice of the important accessions made to it during the year.

ART. 4. — He shall keep an exact account of all books taken out with the names of the persons who take them, and the dates when they are borrowed and returned.

ART. 5. — He may have one or more assistants, appointed by the Council, who shall aid him in all or any of his duties; who shall also aid the Recording Secretary in notifying meetings, copying reports, or in any other way that may be required, and who shall render such other services to the Society connected with its Library or its general proceedings as the Council may direct.

ART. 6. — The Library shall be open on all week-days throughout the year, except on days of public observance, and on the day of the Annual Meeting, between such hours as the Council may from time to time appoint.

ART. 7. — Any Member of the Society may take from the Library three printed volumes at a time, and keep each of them four weeks, with a right to renew the loan from time to time, unless some other member has asked for the said volumes in writing.

ART. 8. — At the written request of a Resident Member, the Librarian shall permit any person to visit the Library and consult the books under such conditions as he may prescribe.

ART. 9. — At the written request of a Resident Member the Librarian shall deliver to the person indicated in such request, any book or books belonging to the Society, which the member himself might take out. No member shall grant the privilege mentioned in this article to more than one person at the same time.

ART. 10. — Any member taking books from the Library or authorizing the use of them, in the Library or elsewhere, under Articles 7, 8, or 9, shall be answerable for the loss of them, or for any injury done to them, to such amount as the Council may deem just.

ART. 11. — Any committee of the Society, for the time being, may take such books and manuscripts from the Library as they may need in order to perform the duty assigned to them by the Society.

ART. 12. — All manuscripts of the Society shall be kept under lock and key, and be used only in presence of the Librarian or an assistant. Any document or manuscript may, however, by vote of the Council, be lent for use on public occasions under such conditions for safe preservation and return as the Council may in any case impose.

ART. 13. — Persons not members of the Society, engaged in historical pursuits, may be allowed to consult the manuscripts belonging to the Society, provided an application in writing, stating the object of the inquiry, be first made to the Librarian, who shall make a record of the same.

ART. 14. — With the consent of the Librarian memoranda of names, dates, and similar matter, may be made from manuscripts belonging to the Society. But no manuscript, and no part of a manuscript, belonging to the Society, shall be copied, except by permission of the Council, after an application in writing, specifying the manuscript, or part thereof, desired to be copied. If any such manuscript shall, in consequence of such permission, be published, in whole or in part, the fact that it was obtained from the Society shall be required to be stated in its publication.

ART. 15. — Manuscripts of a confidential nature shall be retained in a place of special deposit, and shall be consulted only under such regulations as may be prescribed in each case by the Council.

ART. 16. — No maps, newspapers, or books of great rarity or of constant reference, shall be taken from the Library, except by vote of the Council.

ART. 17. — All tracts, books, maps, and manuscripts belonging to the Society, shall be distinctly marked as its property; and all such as may be presented to the Society shall be marked with the name of the giver, and recorded as his gift.

CHAPTER IX.

RULES FOR THE DOWSE LIBRARY.

ART. 1. — The room in which are deposited the books presented to the Society by Thomas Dowse shall be known forever as the DOWSE LIBRARY OF THE MASSACHUSETTS HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ART. 2. — Agreeably to the condition prescribed by Mr. Dowse, none of his books shall be taken out of the room.

ART. 3. — Meetings of the Society shall be held in the Dowse Library, if not otherwise ordered by the Council; but the room shall be used for no other meetings, except by committees of the Society.

CHAPTER X.

OF THE CABINET-KEEPER, AND THE MUSEUM.

ART. 1. — The Cabinet-Keeper shall have charge of all coins, works of art, remains of antiquity, and other articles appropriate to the Society's Museum, and shall keep catalogues of the same.

ART. 2. — He shall acknowledge by letter the receipt of each gift. At every regular meeting of the Society, he shall report whatever may have been added to the collection of which he has charge, with the names of the givers; and, at the Annual Meeting, shall present a full report of the condition of the Museum.

CHAPTER XI.

OF THE COMMITTEES ON THE TREASURER'S ACCOUNTS,
THE LIBRARY, AND CABINET.

ART. 1. — At the monthly meeting in March, annually, a Committee of not less than two members shall be appointed, whose duty it shall be to examine the Treasurer's accounts for the year preceding, and the state of the funds of the Society, and to report thereon at the Annual Meeting; and, if they shall so desire, they may employ a paid expert to assist them in the performance of any part of this duty.

ART. 2. — At the monthly meeting in March, annually, a Committee of not less than three members shall be appointed, whose duty it shall be to examine the property of the Society in charge of the Librarian and the Cabinet-Keeper, and to report thereon at the Annual Meeting.

ART. 3. — These Committees shall be required to report in writing or in print.

CHAPTER XII.

OF THE COUNCIL.

ART. 1. — The Council shall exercise a general oversight of the affairs and property of the Society, and shall prepare and present such business matters and make such recommendations to the Society as they may deem expedient.

ART. 2. — They shall, from time to time, carefully consider the claims of all persons whose names have been proposed for membership, and, as vacancies occur in the Society, by death or otherwise, shall, at their discretion, report nominations; but no nomination, whether for Resident, Corresponding, or Honorary Membership, shall be reported, of any person whose name has not been entered in the nomination-book at least thirty days; nor shall any nomination of a member be valid unless seven members of the Council have assented to it.

ART. 3. — They shall engage whatever assistance is needed to administer the Library and Cabinet, and shall authorize the Treasurer to pay, from time to time, such sums as may be necessary for the current expenses of the Society.

ART. 4. — They shall cause to be made, as often as may seem expedient, a thorough examination of the Library and Cabinet of the Society.

ART. 5. — They shall meet in the Society's rooms within one week previous to every regular meeting of the Society, on such day and at such hour as they may agree upon, and at such other times as the President, or in his absence a Vice-President, shall call them together.

ART. 6. — On the death of a Resident Member, they shall appoint a person to prepare a memoir of him for publication in the Proceedings.

ART. 7. — They shall make an annual report, to be drawn up by the member at large who has had the longest term of service, or, in case two members have served the same length of time, by the senior of the two as member of the Society.

CHAPTER XIII.

OF THE PUBLICATIONS.

ART. 1. — Immediately after the publication of any volume of the Collections of the Society, or at any other time when the Society may order, a committee of not less than three persons shall be appointed by the President, whose duty it shall be to prepare and publish another volume; for which purpose they are authorized to incur such expense as the Council may approve.

ART. 2. — There shall be inserted in each volume published from the income of any fund, a statement in print that it was made at the charge of that fund.

ART. 3. — The Recording Secretary, and two other members to be appointed at the regular meeting in May by the President, shall constitute a Committee, with full power to provide for occasional reports, as well as for the permanent publication of the Proceedings of the Society, subject to the following limitations:

First, Neither the remarks nor the name of any member shall be introduced into any report without his permission.

Second, All papers read or remarks made by any member, which such member shall desire or be willing to have printed, shall be submitted to the above-named Committee for the purpose, and shall be subject to their discretion: provided, however, that any member may publish, on his own responsibility, any paper or remarks of his own which the Committee may not think fit to include in their report; but in such case, the Society shall not be mentioned in any way whatever in connection with such publication.

ART. 4. — The Council may appoint a member of the Society, or other competent person, who shall be immediately responsible for the proper editing of all volumes, whether of Collections or Proceedings, the supervision of the Society's copyists, and the adequate preparation of all material intended for the press. If the person so appointed be a Resident Member of the Society, he shall be ex-officio a member of the Council and of all committees of publication; but the authority of any Editor shall be subordinate to that of said committees. The Editor shall receive such salary as may be fixed by the Council.

CHAPTER XIV.
